

TRAVEL RISK AWARENESS E-LEARNING

ONLINE TRAINING TO HELP KEEP TRAVELLERS SAFE

More and more of us are travelling for work, study or pleasure and in an ever changing world, travel risks are constantly changing too. So, while most trips are usually incident free, it's still important that travellers know what to do if an incident occurs.

For organisations and employers, your duty of care to your employees, contractors, expats and volunteer workers means doing the right things to safeguard your people. Ensuring they are informed about the risks they could face and aware of the behaviours and conduct that can help keep them safe gives your travellers the confidence to face unfamiliar situations and locations and helps ensure that even small incidents do not escalate into crises.

Focusing on practical information, our interactive, online Travel Risk Awareness course gives travellers the knowledge to recognise potential risks, guidance on how to reduce those risks and advice on what to do should an incident occur.

The course is designed to be viewed across multiple devices and is divided into a series of modules so users can learn where and whenever they want. Its style is engaging and interactive with informative videos and case studies that aid learning.

Short quizzes in each module allow learners to measure their progress and confirm their understanding, and a final multiple choice assessment tests their knowledge.

Reporting on candidate progress and final attainment can provide organisations with an audit trail for compliance purposes.

What's in this course?

This course is designed to help users explore some of the key information, skills and behaviours that will help them to travel safely. Along the way they will hear case studies and top tips from our experts.

INTRODUCTION TO TRAVEL RISK AWARENESS

This introductory topic examines travel risk and explores why training is important.

PRE-TRAVEL PREPARATION

This topic explores all the things users should research, pack and do before travelling.

CYBER SAFETY

Focuses on the risks around using digital devices and services when travelling, with the aim of preventing data breaches, in order to keep sensitive personal and organisational data secure.

AIR TRAVEL

Explores how travellers should conduct themselves before departure, in the air and on arrival. It also looks at what to do if something goes wrong.

IN-COUNTRY SECURITY AWARENESS

This module covers how to move around a destination safely, including guidance on using different types of transport. It considers behaviours and conduct that can help keep travellers safe, hotel safety and how to react in case of an incident.

TERRORISM AWARENESS, CONDUCT AND SURVIVAL

This topic explores ideas of where terrorism can occur and gives advice on how to respond if you are caught up in a terrorist incident.

SURVEILLANCE

Users explore what is meant by surveillance; who might be targeted and why. They also look at the different types of surveillance and identify the best conduct for staying safe.

DEALING WITH AN INCIDENT

This section considers what to do if involved in an incident. Looking at how incidents can affect a country's infrastructure and giving users techniques and strategies to reduce the impact on their organisation and their own safety.

KIDNAP AWARENESS, CONDUCT AND SURVIVAL

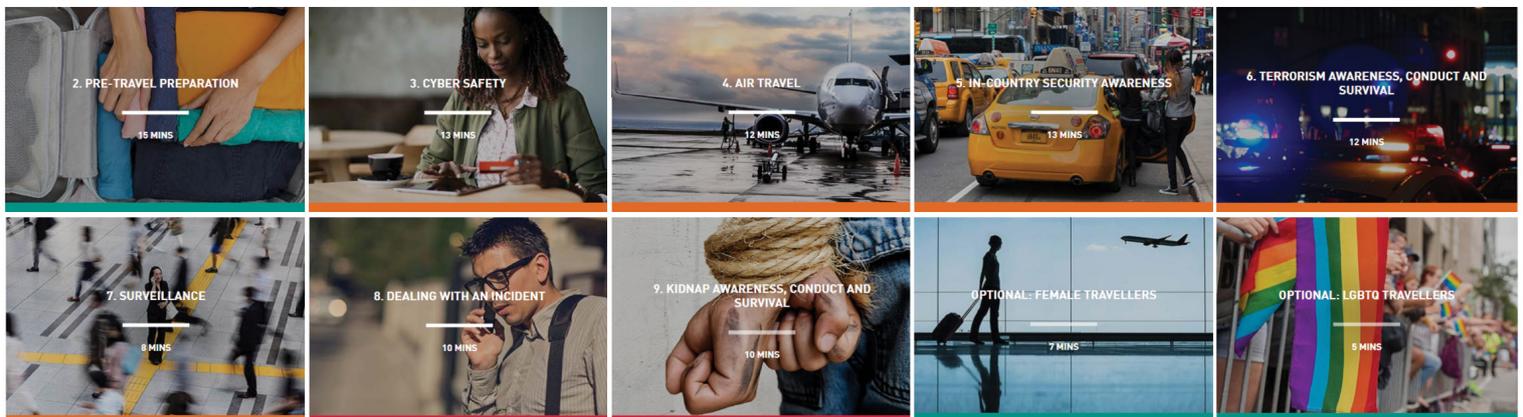

Although kidnapping is very rare, knowing what to do can change the outcome of any kidnapping attempt. This topic explores the different types of kidnapping, techniques for avoiding kidnap and how to react in the safest way if you are kidnapped.

FEMALE TRAVELLERS

An optional module that focuses on issues and considerations that specifically affect female travellers.

LGBTQ TRAVELLERS

This optional module aimed at LGBTQ travellers, focuses on issues and considerations that could affect them when travelling.

The course is SCORM compliant and can be accessed online via a secure portal or delivered directly by an organisations own Learning Management System (LMS).

Prepare and equip your travellers with the critical knowledge they need to travel and conduct business safely.
